

COMMERCE CHAMBER GIVES RULES FOR PREVENTING FIRES

Fire Chief Tells of Plan to Give Prizes to School Pupils for Essays.

To help avoid the nation's half billion annual fire loss, the Chamber of Commerce Monday, the first day of Fire Prevention week, issued a few rules designed to reduce fire hazards in the home. These rules follow:

"Before starting the fires for the winter, it is important that careful attention be given to the chimneys and flues, for if they are neglected the entire home may be reduced to a few charred embers merely because of lack of care. During the five years ending 1920, property valued in excess of $12,000,000 was destroyed annually as the result of defective chimneys and flues. The larger part of this loss could have been prevented if an inspection had been made, soot cleaned out and the necessary repairs made before the fire was built in the chimney.

"Oil and gasoline take their annual toll of destruction because someone uses them carelessly or ignorantly. Kerosene or gasoline is a dangerous assistant when starting a fire in the stove or furnace. Tightly zipped or rags often cause fires from spontaneous combustion. They should therefore be always kept in metal containers.

Watch Electric Apparatus.
"Electric lighting and heating apparatus should be carefully installed and frequently inspected. Electricity alone caused an average of $17,600,000 loss annually during the five year period ending 1920.

"Disorder and untidiness breed fires. Careful attention should therefore be given by the household to the removal of all rubbish from cellars, attics and cupboards. All open lights in a home should be properly protected. Candles should be taken that curtains or other inflammable material cannot blow into the flame of the gas light. Screens should be placed in front of open fire-places so that no one can accidentally get his clothes in contact with the flame.

"Lighted matches, cigar or cigarette butts should be properly disposed of.

"Hot water, not fires should be used to thaw frozen water pipes.

Individual's Duty.

"Every individual owes it to himself, his family and his neighbors to use every means possible to remove the cause of fire in his home. He should realize that carelessness or thoughtlessness on his part may not only deprive him of his property but cause loss and suffering to others. Since a fire rapidly spreads, the household should therefore be constantly alert and ever on the lookout for apparently small things which may result in a disaster involving the loss of home and possibly of lives."

According to Fire Chief I. W. Strehl, a feature of the Fire Prevention week will be the awarding of liberal prizes to school children for the best essays on the subject of fire prevention. The children are to be divided into three different classes, and prizes of $5, $3 and $2 will be given the three best essays in each division or class.

Provide Questionnaires.

In addition to this, and as an experiment, school children are being provided with questionnaires to take home, containing as many as five questions germane to the subject of fire prevention. These questionnaires are so arranged that, if parents answer them in the spirit of honest co-operation, the fire department officials will have some helpful and much desired knowledge of prevailing conditions in the homes. Although as many inspections as possible will be made during the week, the chief explained that it is the intention of the department: not to make itself a nuisance but to get a fair knowledge of the situation respecting fire prevention as a matter of civic good.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 2.—(By I. N. S.)—That he would order Sheriff Ben B. Danby to prevent an advertised demonstration of the Ku Klux Klan at the State Fair grounds was announced by Forest L. Hughes, county attorney Monday.

CONSERVATISM IS TENDENCY OF STYLE

"Flapper" and "Cake Eater"
Must Be Served, but They Are Now Passe.

BY KENNETH HARRIS,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 2.—Conservative clothes for ladies and gentlemen.

That's to be the vogue this Fall and Winter, according to local clothiers. When flapperism was the rage a short time back the flapper and the "cake eater" both went to extremes in dress. He wore clothes which buttoned semi-chokingly about his collar and neck and corduroy trousers whose bottoms flopped about the ankles. This type of patronage will be served, but the clothiers say those who demand the unusual are rapidly becoming fewer.

"The extreme in dress as typified by the flappers and cake eaters is a disease," explained Louis S. Rothschild, president of Rothschild & Sons, clothiers. "How it is being exterminated rapidly, in my opinion."

"East" is Blamed.
"I firmly believe it had its inception in the east. I recall vividly that youngsters attending college during 1915, shortly after the war, were demanding clothes whose tendency was toward the English effect. They wanted to get away from the four-button coat which was popular at that time. The natural evolution in styles since that period has produced the cake eater. He had to have clothes that were different, and goodness knows he has had them."

"It would be impossible to predict what the lads of sixteen to eighteen years of age will wear this winter. They are the unknown quantity. It is a Chinese puzzle to carry apparel in stock which will prove to their liking."

"Thank heaven, conservatism in dress has finally arrived, in conjunction with other forecasters of normalcy, and perhaps parents will direct their offspring toward a more sane mode of dress than has been prevalent the last three years. This is to be hoped. It will make for sounder Americanism, I am sure."

Prices Drop Somewhat.

Awaiting his inspection, at prices slightly lower than at this time last year, the man who demands the "quiet" style of dress will find this outfit, according to Rothschild:

Hat—The styles are pointed toward the telescoped and creased. Shades of brown and grey predominate. Indications point to the fact that the "cake" will continue to smash his "kelly" and wear it at a rakish angle.

Collars—Ribbon effect is slightly passe. There are many new offerings in shape and texture. Soft collars continue to hold their popularity.

Ties—Knots and bows virtually are dead. A non-muscular silk is expected to prove a good seller.

Suits—Trousers will be cut fuller, and the bell effect at the cuff will not be so daring. The three and four-button coat will be popular, and a wide choice in plain, belted and box backed models is shown.

Waistcoat—A distinct move toward the woolen sweater vest is noted. This is done in a rampage of colors, with brown and blue proving the most popular.

Shirt—The colored pleated garment has staged a "come-back." The plain white shirt is not expected to make a rapid "turn-over." However, it is anticipated that the white soft shirt with collar attached will be much in demand.

Shoes—Punchwork decorations on the toes will be nil, but the toes will remain wide.

Topcoat—Violent colors are the rage. Gray and black are taboos. Canes and spats have waned in popularity until there is only a scattered demand for them.

Flapperism Lingered.
To return to the feminine: Statistics show that flapperism lingered quite a time before its death, so far as dress is concerned, is that they abandon dressing to the extreme; dress moderately and simply most of the time, listen to parental advice in regard to these matters often."
